DETAILED ACTION

A request for continued examination under 37 CFR 1.114 was filed in this application after a decision by the Board of Patent Appeals and Interferences, but before the filing of a Notice of Appeal to the Court of Appeals for the Federal Circuit or the commencement of a civil action. Since this application is eligible for continued examination under 37 CFR 1.114 and the fee set forth in 37 CFR 1.17(e) has been timely paid, the appeal has been withdrawn pursuant to 37 CFR 1.114 and prosecution in this application has been reopened pursuant to 37 CFR 1.114. Applicant's submission filed on December 5, 2007 has been entered.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102 – Anticipation (Previous Rejection)

Claims 23-31 were rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by Kohl et al. (USP 3,681,091).

The rejection is maintained.

Applicant has amended the claims to include the limitation "who has decided to ingest, for the purpose of treating dental erosion" and deleted the limitation "in need thereof". Upon reconsideration and taking into account the Board's Decision holding:

Therefore, it is reasonable to find that the average consumer of the acidic beverages of the prior art would also appreciate the need for enamel erosion control and thus be "in need of" enamel erosion control as that phrase is interpreted in Jansen. Furthermore, setting Jansen aside and focusing on the inherency case before us, we find that acidic beverages, such as colas and fruit juices, are known to promote dental erosion. Therefore, we find that all individuals with natural teeth who drink acidic beverages, such as the acidic beverages of the prior art, are necessarily "in need of" protection from dental erosion. We further find that drinking juice containing polyphosphates disclosed in Kohl would inherently treat dental erosion.

The average consumer drinking the beverages comprising polyphosphates as disclosed by Kohl would initially decide to ingest the beverages and therefore would inherently treat dental erosion as asserted in the above decision.

Claims 23-31 are rejected.

No claims allowed.
